FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS ABOUT SHIVAS

Q: Must the food be Kosher if the family is not strictly observant?

A: No, not all Jews strictly observe the Laws of Kashruth, however some do. In addition, relatives and visitors to the home of the bereaved who may be strictly observant, may not partake if the food is not kosher.

Q: If I am not Jewish, would it be appropriate for me to send a condolence platter or meals to a Jewish friend?

A: Yes. In fact, it would probably be the most appropriate thing you can do for the bereaved. In other faiths, flowers are probably the norm. Not so for those who are Jewish.

Q: Can't I simply send flowers?

A: Flowers are not appropriate for a Jewish funeral. The custom of sending a condolence tray or other food gift to the home is more appropriate and welcomed.

Condolence Catering and Coordinated Shiva Service

We coordinate with a family member or person representing the family to set up an account to take donations. We offer full-service catering/ staff to make this time of grief less stressful for you and your family. If your home is unavailable for accommodating family and friends for shiva minyans, The Schmooze Room at Kenny and Ziggy's can be another option to host your Minyan Gathering.
